Thank you. Just trying to sort thru the many different ways we are now handling label revisions as part of consultations.

Cathy,

Here's a link to the final Rozol BiOp:

<http://www.epa.gov/espp/2012/borozol-final.pdf>

If I remember correctly, the majority of the bulletins came concurrently with the final BiOp. The bulletins pertaining to the northern aplomado falcon came a little later. John Hebert should be able to help with when the label was finalized.

It looks like the Rozol label was stamped on August 24, 2012:

The final Rozol BiOp is on the ESPP website; check under 2012 archives. Re: the timing of Bulletins implementation , as I recall, the majority came very soon after (or even concurrently w) the final BiOp (we were trying to give user's 6 months lead time heading into the start of the use season in Oct). Other bulletins came later because we were waiting on FWS to provide shapefiles. The label came after the BiOp also; will check on the timing when back in the office. The BiOp was not specific re: the timeline for implementation of Bulletins or the label changes....FWS seemed satisfied w/the letter.

Subject: Rozol Questions

Just going thru some Rozol docs and had a couple of questions. The letter dated 12/13/2011 from EPA to FWS says "EPA understands that Liphatech intends to submit a voluntary amendment to its FIFRA registration to match the new scope of consultation". There is no time frame for when Liphatech intends to do this.

Was there a final BiOp from USFWS for Rozol? Did it include a time frame for the label revisions and Bulletin links necessary to implement the Conservation Measures?

Thanks.
